Challenge of the week:

This week we kicked off our life groups. Life groups are one of my favorite things. Being in a smaller group of people and getting to grow closer together is the beauty of life groups. My challenge this week is for you to start thinking about someone at school who needs community. Someone you notice that maybe doesn't have a place to come and spend time with friends. Start praying for that person. Start reaching out to that person. Maybe sit with them at lunch or invite them to sit with you and your friends. You can also invite them to be a part of our life groups so that they can get connected with others. We all need community. We need others in our lives to laugh, cry or just hang out with. Don't be afraid to reach out to someone because you never know how much it could change their life!

In Christ,
Travis Byrd

Eben's Essentials

Why do some scientists refer to DNA as "the language of God?" Researchers marvel at the coil of DNA inside each of our body's 100 trillion cells. Amazingly, it provides the genetic information necessary to create all the proteins out of which our bodies are built. So DNA harbors a mountain of information spelled out in a four-letter chemical alphabet. Information always implies mind.

Dr. Stephen Meyer has said, "Information is the hallmark of mind. And purely from the evidence of genetics and biology, we can infer the existence of a mind that's far greater than our own." This intelligent designer is called God. Similarly, Dr. Francis S. Collins, head of the Human Genome Project, said DNA was "our own instruction book, previously known only to God."

The conclusion is obvious: an intelligent being has spelled out evidence of his existence through the chemical letters used in the genetic code. It's as if God has autographed every cell.

"For you created my inmost being; you knit me together in my mother's womb. I praise you because I am fearfully and wonderfully made." Psalm 139:13-14.

On the Lighter Side

Half It Your Way

The food at the sandwich shop I frequent is good, but any deviation from the norm throws the staff. I once told a clerk that I wanted only half a sandwich. His reply: "What am I going to do with the other half?" A week later, when I told another clerk the same thing, she responded, "Do you want the top or the bottom?"
